Contemporary Bibliography
(since 1945)

- processed completely in database form
- right now the two year lasting conversion of historical data from older data format is nearly being finished
- meets common standards for contemporary librarianship (MARC21 exchange format, RDA cataloguing rules, Aleph software etc.)
- integrated to the national research information exchange networks
- CLB is using various persistent identifiers: national personal authorities code enables connection to VIAF etc.; codes for the other types of national authorities; ISSN; ISBN; fields for possible connection to digital libraries etc.)
- could be used for statistical and quantitative analyses of literary field defined by the needs of researcher
- grant project for development of such software tools for quantitative analyses of MARC21 data has been submitted on August (under evaluation nowadays)

Conclusion

CLB operates:
• structured data
• unstructured data
• persistent identifiers
• part of scientific exchange information nets

ICL operates (and CLB mainly cooperates with):
• Encyclopedia of Czech Literature online (Lexicographical Department)
• Versology.cz (Department for Theory of Literature)
• Czech Electronical Library (Textological Department)
• etc.
Thank you for your attention.
